HERITAGE '73

It's kinda funny really — trying to squeeze 652 lives and 254 days into only 164 pages. But this is 1973 — our 25th year — and we can do anything we set our mind to. Every face and event will be recorded for future generations to point to and laugh at. "Dimensions in Yearbooks" — that's what we'll call it.

But who's kidding whom? Some of you won't find yourself in here at all and probably your favorite memories will be stamped only on the pages of your mind. But don't give up on this book. It's different and it's good, not perfect, only different and good.

And I hope that in future years it will bring you as much pleasure and pain, tears and laughter as '72-'73 did itself.

Julie Kroes, Editor

For the first time in its history
the Heritage is dedicated to its subject matter

. . . you

Dr. Hoyt, President of Grace College

Apart from life, the most precious commodity in this world is time. It is that period during which life is permitted to express itself in the various activities and functions of spirit, soul, and body that make for personal achievement, social contribution, and divine adoration. It is that period when all the facets of personality have opportunity to sparkle with brilliance. It is that period when the mind has opportunity to probe the infinite reaches of knowledge and explore the yet unknown. It is that period when the human heart is privileged to make an investment in others, and to see the gladsome response of those who have derived untold benefit through that experience. It is that period of time when the human spirit, made alive by the Spirit of God, may rise to the illimitable heights of divine favor and fellowship, and catch a glimpse of heaven.

How dare anyone murder time! And yet, that is the expression which is so often used, even by the best of people, when they find themselves caught at an inopportune moment. They are heard to say, "I am killing time." Is it possible that they are murdering that which it took the Divine Creator to bring into existence, upon which He looked and called it "good?" Is it possible that anyone would dare murder that which is measured out to us in such a small quantity that the passing hours, the days, the months, and the years reach perchance the paltry sum of 70 years? Is it possible that those fleeting moments are actually regarded to be of such little value that one would not hesitate to cast them away without a tear? Is it possible that this infinitesimal span of time could be regarded as so worthless, that we would refuse to use it for the acquisition and application of wisdom? If not, then "teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts to wisdom."

The real democratic American idea is, not that every man shall be on a level with every other, but that every one shall have liberty, without hindrance, to be what God made him.

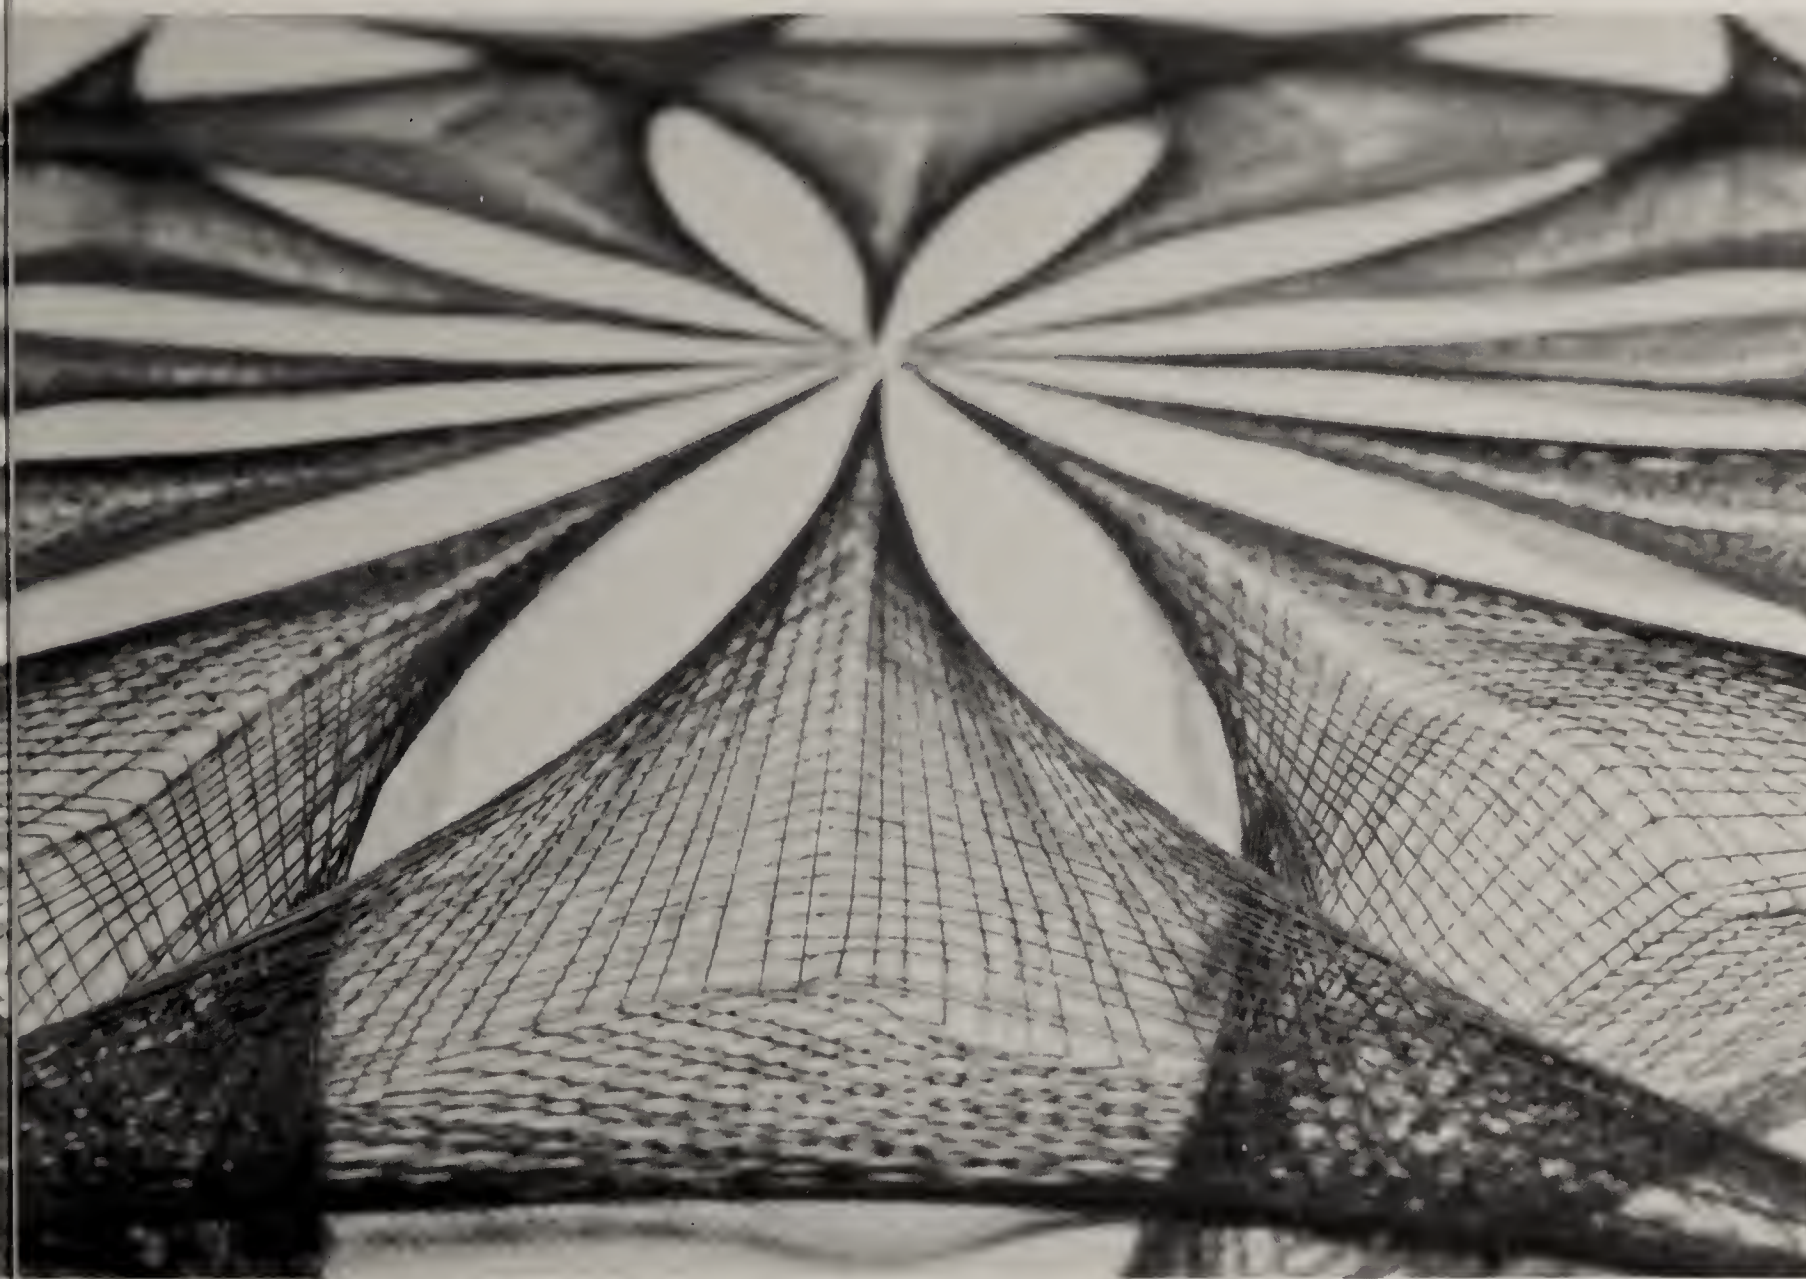

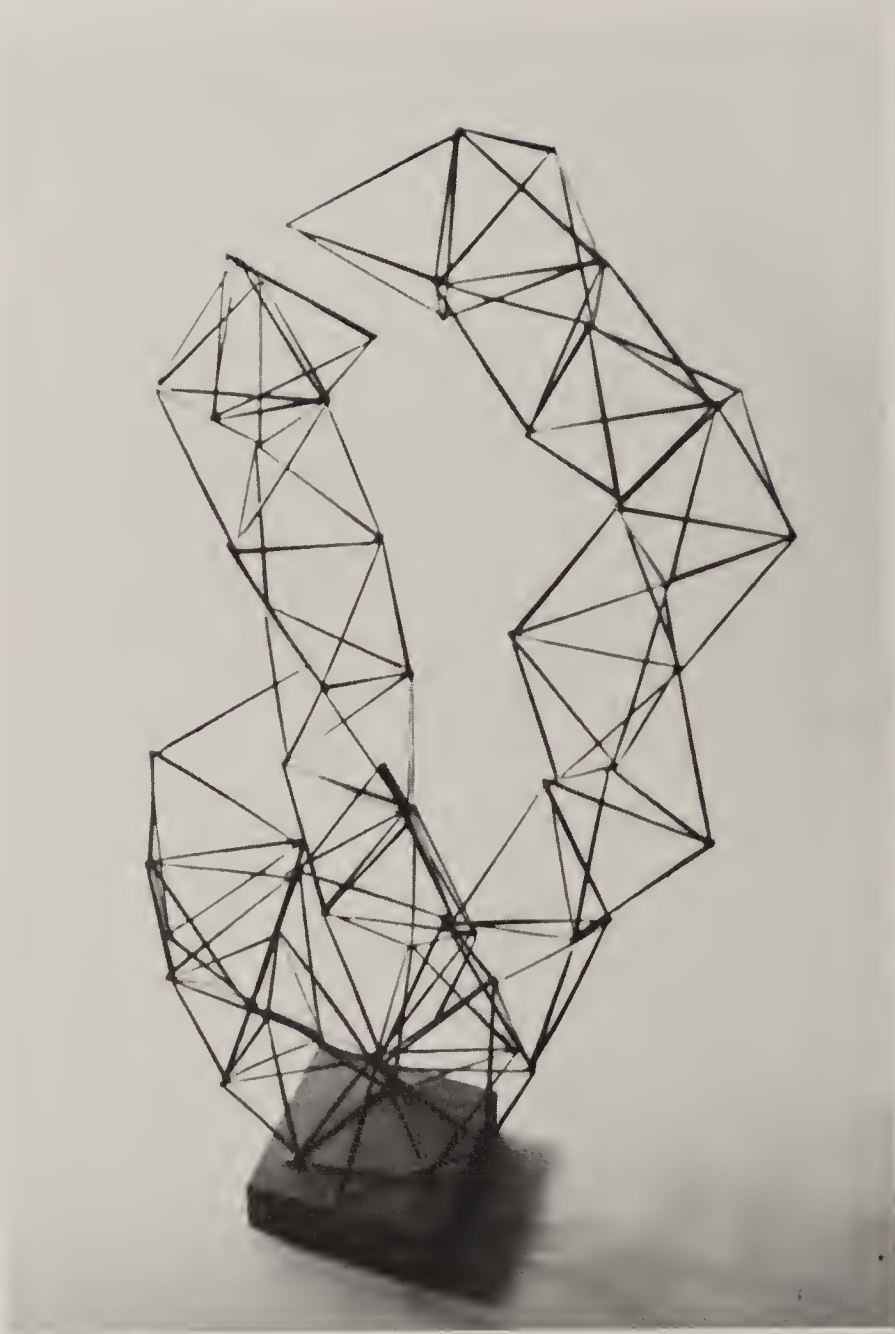

Art

God was the first and the greatest artist.
His creation was composed of material form, light, and line.

Ever since the beginning of his life on earth,
man has tried to copy and capture the essence of God's creative power through art.

"Any great work of art
is great because it creates a special world
of its own . . . it
revives and readapts
time and space . . .
and the measure of its success is the extent to which it
makes you an inhabitant of that world, the extent to which it
invites you in and lets you breathe its strange, special air."

Chapel requires your body only — the sign-up sheets can't check your mind. In case it wasn't there, the following was well worth listening to . . .

Student Senate President Jon Hall
Inaugural Address:

It has been said, "If you don't stand for something, you will fall for anything." There is no doubt in my mind that we must stand united under one cause. This is the most basic element necessary for the survival of any family, organization, or nation. In fact, an organization can stand even if it isn't for a worthy cause. But no matter who it is, no one, not even Satan himself, can be plagued by disunity and expect to continue. Was not the first division of mankind the time when one man chose to go against that cause for which God had created him? And what was the result of that division? Adam, now, instead of being the prophet, priest, and king of the human race, is the father of a suffering and dejected world. Since that time, throughout all of history, man has continually divided himself — the Jews after King Solomon's death, the Romans in the sixth century . . . even in our own country, the lives of over 500,000 men were lost, and the nation rent apart because the people could not unite under one cause.

What then would be a worthy cause for us, one which would include all of us, whether we are a member of the Board of Trustees, the Administration, faculty, or student body? What would be that all inclusive cause? It can only be this: that each day we individually strive with an unquenchable desire to become that person which we have chosen to be, in order that, first, Jesus Christ might be glorified, and second, that every person we encounter might recognize in us that quality which sets us apart as a unique people.

Let me break that statement down and discuss it, so you will understand exactly what I mean. First, "that each day we individually strive with an unquenchable desire." This is the basic ingredient in being successful at anything. Each day must be viewed as another chance to get a little closer to our goals. If we take only one day and waste it on frivolous things, we will find it easier the next time to take two days, then three, and so on, until we have wasted not days, but weeks, months, years, maybe even our lifetimes. Therefore, we must see that what we accomplish today will affect us in the near and distant future either for good or for bad. We must also individually strive toward these goals. No one else is going to do it for us. Others may counsel us, may give us support and encouragement, but it's going to be your responsibility and mine, with God's directing hand, to become as Paul says, "men of mature character with the right sort of independence." Most of all, we must strive with an unquenchable desire; apathy is a sure killer of any good cause. Proverbs states it in this manner:

A little sleep, a little slumber
A little folding of the hands to rest;
Then your poverty will come as a robber,
And your want like an armed man.

Rather than being like this sluggard, we ought to have the drive that Vince Lombardi has spoken of so well in the statement, "I firmly believe that any man's finest hour is that moment when he has worked his heart out in a good cause and lies exhausted on the field of battle — victorious."

The next part is this, "to become that person which we have chosen to be in order that first Jesus Christ might be glorified." It is absolutely necessary that we choose to be somebody, to have goals with meaning. What is important here is not what we will do as an occupation, but what we are made of inside. "Without a vision the people perish," and without a purpose for living there is no strength or desire to even exist. Some have called this the "will to mean," in other words, the will to have a meaningful existence. These goals must be made with the express purpose of first glorifying Christ. If they are made just to please ourselves, we will find that they satisfy no one, especially ourselves. It was Solomon, who after seeking and obtaining every earthly desire, said, "Vanity, vanity, all is vanity." If the richest and wisest man in all history proclaims self-satisfaction as worthless, who are we to argue the point? Instead, if we let Christ direct our goals, there can only come love, joy, and personal peace.

Finally, "that every person we encounter might recognize in us that quality which sets us apart as a unique people." They will see us as unique if they can see that we are real, vibrant, and sensitive to the needs of others. It is evident that our goals must reach out and include our neighbors. The Bible says, "He who seeks to separate himself seeks his own desire." This relationship to other people is the most valuable thing we have next to knowing Christ. If our goals do not include it, we become spiritually lopsided and of no earthly good. Reaching out to others means meeting their needs, and meeting their needs means loving them, and love is what living is all about. If we develop this quality then they will see us as alive, as enthusiastic, and as individuals with depth — and without question will call us a unique people.

... Just remember that in your hands rest the unity and progress of this school. Whether you are a freshman without a major or a faculty member with a Ph.D., your decision will affect every other person sitting in this auditorium. I can only hope that you will align yourselves with the cause I have stated and as Paul wrote, "Make it your aim to be at one in the Spirit ..." for then, as God so wonderfully has promised, "... you will inevitably be at peace with one another."

Frank Gonzales:

When God does something wonderful, He begins with a difficulty. When God want to do something really wonderful, He begins with an impossibility.

What we need today is the same "20-20 vision" for souls that Paul had. The prescription is found in Acts 20:20. He kept back nothing that would be profitable to the people, and he taught them, not only publicly, but also going from home to home.

Rev. Robert Thompson:

I think that to ask for the presence of God is the most ridiculous thing top-side of this earth. When I came in, God came in — how about you?

... we need to know that day by day, hour by hour, Jesus is walking with me, with you ... and don't look for Jesus to be revealed to you by some little miracle. You'll find him only as you open the pages of His book.

Rev. Peter Pascoe:

I'm tired of Christianity portrayed as fun and games. Christianity is blood, sweat, and tears, and the name of the game is obedience.

Rev. William Fusco:

You've trusted Christ for heaven; have you trusted Him for happiness?

In Matthew 26:36-46 we find three reasons why the disciples slept, and Jesus didn't. First, they didn't recognize the urgency of the situation. Second, they didn't remember the uniqueness of the Son of God. Finally, they didn't resist the ugliness of self. How about it — are YOU sleeping?

Rev. Knute Larson:

We're mistaken if we think there is a dichotomy between religious truth and truth truth.

Ed Jackson:

Happiness is the by-product that we discover we have as we walk along the road of duty.

Rev. Richard Cannon:

Going overseas doesn't make you a missionary, but staying home doesn't make you one either. Start finding out where you fit in, in a world that's exploding today.

well, it's over,
i guess.
it doesn't seem like it should be four longshort years.
it's funny to think of starting a new life
or of ending an old one;
complaining about the food
and cleaning our rooms,
and putting things off
till the night before.
but we did have good times didn't we?
and i think what made them good were the times we cried together prayed together.
it would be fine to think that no one could ever take our place when we leave to have them say we were the best.
(maybe they will)
but even though it's over,
it's really a beginning.
and although we're leaving we've really only come.

... winging our way to destinies unknown,
carried by His grace, nested in His love

My eyes
see a thorn held by a stem

Following
ever upward
I see the green stem reach to heaven
and give a leaf kissed
by the dew
that soon melts

Yet nestled at the top is a bud about to open,
the rose
is given birth unfolding
with the rays
of the sun

Red, pink
yellow, green,
and blue rainbows
of new beginnings
so let each day
be taken thusly
and
so each thorn
of life

God takes us
as a thorn,
then makes
our life
His rose.

you came with a welcoming smile
but a shy heart
and gave me your hand.
you opened the door of your life and timidly (but oh so sweetly)
beckoned me in:
you wrote on the
tablet of my soul,
and now you are
a part of me:
you are helping me
to wipe clean my slate
so that I can write a new story (thank you)
and today, you, too,
have begun to pen
the pages of your life,
and you are growing.
you are a flower in your own (special) time:
beautifully clothed in warmth and color,
feelings and dreams.
this is how I see you.
to me you are lovely and very special,
and my heart is full of love for
you.

Life vanishes in an endless abyss
While time treading laughingly
Upon my breath
Chokes every passionate song of peace.

"The second star on the right
Can save you from your perilous plight.
Let your heart and mind take wing
God bless America — of thee I sing."

Light dims in the purplish haze of night
While age squeezing my heart's affections
Shreds hopeful thoughts of content.

"Let your soul expand and dwell
There's no such place as hell.
Soar with me to depths unknown
Lay down, shoot up, you'll never reap
What you have sown."

Fear beckons at the door of beyond
While the twisted cords
Of nameless expressions
Enmesh and paralyze my helpless frame,

"The golden sphere of the human race
All your troubles will erase
Your God is dead, so why not live?
My pleasure has much more to give."

"There is no peace, no love, no joy,
You're nothing but a plastic toy.
Engulfed in tissue paper thin,
I, not Him, your mind must win."

"Concede and yield to my demand
There's not a thing called shifting sand.
Wiser and freer you'll come to me,
Just taste the apple of the tree."

Yet balm of clay brightens dimming eyes
While fire purges blackened hands
Hiding deeds in rusted vaults.

Ascending on the steps by day
I view eternity stretching into a — Radiant field of crimson gold
Where time conveys all death away.

We certainly haven't lost, but we really haven't won.
What do you do with an incomplete victory?
And the work goes on . . .

"Would you tell me, please, which way I ought to go from here?"

"That depends a good deal on where you want to get to," said the Cat.

"I don't much care where —" said Alice.

"Then it doesn't matter which way you go," said the Cat.

" — so long as I get somewhere," Alice added as an explanation.

"Oh, you're sure to do that," said the Cat, "if you only walk long enough."

Well, we've been walking for awhile, 17 years to be exact, and we got somewhere — candidate status. But it isn't "Wonderland." And if we keep on walking, and things go right, we won't have reached it in three years either. Hopefully, accreditation will be only a small reflection of a genuine desire to do the best we can in everything we do. The self-study committee has worked hard, but it cannot force upon us an attitude of personal academic excellence. Unless that becomes the goal of each student, all we will have left three years from now will be memories of a little adventure. Oh, who knows, we may even have the title, but it will be a meaningless one — rather like the grin of the Cheshire Cat . . .

Walk-a-thon

We raised money
and blisters . . .
all in the same day.
We sang hymns and
giggled and stooped and clapped our hands
and joked and sometimes ran.
But most of all
we walked . . .
together.

We didn't know where else to put this . . .
